

Chartwell's Partnership with Cristo Rey Philadelphia High School

Cristo Rey is a network of college preparatory Catholic schools with 38 locations across the U.S. There are currently more than 12,000 students and 23,100 alumni nationwide. Cristo Rey Philadelphia High School began in 2012 and received their Middle States Certification in 2021.

Students attending Cristo Rey receive top-quality education with minimal to no-cost to students' families and have a 100% likelihood of being admitted to college. In addition to an education, students are offered wrap-around counseling services, affordable access to college, and will also be provided with additional support through college graduation. In addition, Cristo Rey also offers a wide range of clubs and competitive athletic programs for students.

One highlight for students is Cristo Rey's Work Study Program where they partner with Philadelphia area businesses to provide students with real-life job experience one day a week. Some of the goals in this program are to have students learn and implement life skills through their experience in the workplace, gain confidence, and receive real work experience while gaining exposure to various industries.

Chartwell began its exciting partnership with Cristo Rey in 2020 and is one of over 90 businesses in the Philadelphia area that sponsor students in this program. We currently have four students from Freshman to Senior year that work in our office each week and are mentored by Chartwell employees at all levels of the organization. Our students are taught about what we do and may sit with their mentors to see what a typical day in the investment management industry looks like. The students may also be assigned various projects to help them learn our industry and even help us! Each Fall we look forward to meeting our new (and sometimes returning) students as they start their school year.
